

2016.01.003. Chebanenko S.B. South Rus and Subcarpathia (Southwestern Rus) in the period of Mongol invasion: problems of the newest historiography // Rusin. 2016. № 1 (43). Pp. 81-94.
Code http://journals.tsu.ru/rusin/&journal_page=archive&id=1397&article_id=32335

V.M. Korol

Article is indexed by:

Scopus: <https://www.scopus.com/authid/detail.uri?authorId=56401858700>

Science Index: <http://elibrary.ru/item.asp?id=25818815>

Abstract

A revival of interest towards the Mongol invasion could be mentioned in the last years. In the latest researches, concerning problem of the invasion on the Southern and South-Western Rus lands, on the one hand, specialists state new theses, based on sources, which were not used still in the context of this problematic, on the other hand, scholars inspecting hardened beliefs, basing on new sources. Series of articles written by A.V. Mayorov, are dedicated to history of the Southern and South-Western Rus of the Mongol invasion period. Re-examined relations between south Russian princes and invaders. Ascertained directions and geographical limits of mongol drives, dates, number and position of taken towns, specifics of their assaults. Conclusions of the scholar are based on wide usage of western sources and detailed analyses of Russian Chronicles.

Keywords: historiography, mongols, Rus, Mongol invasion, South Rus, South-Western Rus, Subcarpathia.

References:

Chebanenko S.B. South Rus and Subcarpathia (Southwestern Rus) in the period of Mongol invasion: problems of the newest historiography // Rusin. 2016. № 1 (43). Pp. 81-94.